

Williton Pavilion Project

Project Update.

September has been a busy month, the working group met with the Quantity Surveyor and Mechanical Engineer where we gave them an over view of the project and they are now working with Mitchell Architects on the Project Plan. During the month you may have seen some strange looking equipment on the Memorial Ground, this is a machine that has been taking core samples for soil analysis. This is to ensure we include within out costings any ground works that maybe required before foundations are laid.

October is an important month as we will be submitting our draft documents for review and comment by the Big Lottery. We anticipate that their comments will be many and expect to hold a progress meeting with them later in the month.
